From the VICE-CHANCELLOR'S DESK

It is with pride that I present the batch of 2016 of the Five Year Integrated B.A. LL.B. (Hons.) Course of the National University of Advanced Legal Studies (NUALS). Through the years, this institution has taken great strides in achieving the noble objectives for which it was set up, designed to equip students with professional and lawyering skills and inculcating in them strong moral and ethical values, besides being sensitized to social responsibilities.

The students of NUALS are exposed to several specialized areas of knowledge which is reflected in the course curriculum and which is being revised with emphasis on practical training and clinical legal education. The experience the students get are unique and unparalleled, with sitting and retired Judges of the Supreme Court and High Court and other senior visiting professors interacting with them. So also, the exposure and expertise gleaned through internships with judges, lawyers, top law firms and corporate offices paves their way to professional growth. I am confident that they can boldly face the challenges of the competitive world around them.

NUALS is fortunate to have extremely dedicated and committed Faculty members who are research - oriented, thereby training the students to also be competent legal researchers.

The students have opportunities for overall personality development with an active Students Council involving in a whole range of student activities, including campus recruitment, under the guidance of able faculty members, and a Moot Court Society to advance and disseminate learning and knowledge of advocacy skills including negotiation, client counseling and research. We also have a Legal Aid Clinic.

There are various Forums like the Economic Forum, Quiz Forum, Law and Society Forum and Debating Forum actively functioning throughout the year. This year the students are organizing a British Parliamentary Debate competition in addition to a Cultural Fest 'NAALAM' at a National Level.

This year, a range of Academic Programmes were initiated, such as;

1. Academic Interface of Students and Teachers with Lawyers
2. An International Seminar on 'Human Rights'
3. A Workshop on 'Reforms in Legal Education', where we have re- visited the B.A. LL.B. (Hons.) Course Curriculum and developed a One year LL.M. Course Structure and Curriculum.

Besides the ten existing Centres of learning, we have recently established three more Centres of Study and Research on;

- Intellectual Property Rights,
- Human Rights including International Humanitarian law & Refugee Law; and
- Law and Economics

This would inculcate in teachers and students the urge and initiative for research in law and social science subjects and on issues of contemporary relevance.

I take this opportunity to wish the Final Year Students all success in life. I am confident that they will be an asset to any institution they work with.
