University of Applied Sciences Wuerzburg-Schweinfurt

Hochschule für angewandte Wissenschaften Würzburg-Schweinfurt

The University of Applied Sciences Wuerzburg-Schweinfurt (FHWS) was established in two locations with campuses in Wuerzburg and Schweinfurt in 1971 in accordance with the Bavarian law for the universities of applied sciences.

Its forerunner was the Balthasar Neumann Polytechnic Institute of the District of Lower Franconia and its previous institutions, established in 1851. Since 1963, the Polytechnic Institute maintained a branch in Schweinfurt and was merged with the Secondary School of Economics Wuerzburg and the School of Arts and Crafts Wuerzburg in 1971 by the Free State of Bavaria to form the University of Applied Sciences.

The FHWS, with its ten faculties and 32 undergraduate and postgraduate degrees runs five research institutes offers a broad, practice and future-oriented programs. The University of Applied Sciences makes a significant contribution to the development of the society through its academic work, applied research and opportunities for further education. With approximately 190 professors and around 8.835 enrolled students, the FHWS is the third largest university of applied sciences in Bavaria. FHWS has i-Campus for international students where students can choose between English & German as languages. It has connection with German and international companies. i-Campus is also a combination of professional, cultural and linguistic competencies.

Academic offerings include 19 bachelor's programs: Architecture, Civil Engineering, Business Administration, E-Commerce, Electrical Engineering, Translation (Business or Technical), Computer Science, Communication Design, Plastics and Rubber Engineering, Logistics, Mechanical Engineering, Mechatronics, Media Management, Nursing Management, Social Work, Industrial Mathematics, Surveying and Geoinformatics, Business Information System and Business Engineering.

FHWS offers thirteen master's programs. The eight master's degrees that are offered consecutively after the bachelor's degree are Electrical Engineering, Information Design, Information Systems, Innovation for Small and Medium Size Enterprises, Integrated Design and Construction, Specialized Translation and Multilingual Communication, Trade Journalism and Corporate Communications, as well as Social Work. Additionally, there are five master's degrees that have the format of an advanced training program. These include Building Project Management, Nursing Management, International Business with a Focus on Asia or Central and Eastern Europe, International Business in cooperation with the Christ University, Bangalore (India) and Developmental Music Therapy and Music Therapy with Dementia Patients. "I feel privileged to be the first batch of FHWS and Christ University Joint Academic Program. The course structure is unique and gave us an amazing exposure towards international business environment. It helped me not only to make a career in Germany but also to develop my intercultural business skills. I was partner in the management team in a Berlin based start-up and now working on my own tech venture."

Mr. Sandeep Jakhar

Director & Co-Founder-
Tavolo Technologies Pvt. Ltd,

Class of 2008-'10

"The dual degree program of CUIM, Bangalore and FHWS, Germany provided me an International exposure that has propelled me in the right direction towards my career goals. The application oriented German way of learning pushed me to think beyond boundaries and to apply my knowledge, little or big, to real life situations and challenges. This change in my thinking and perspective was a definite value addition that has helped me sail through competition. Business games, continuous project-based learning, team presentations, complex case studies and Master Thesis are some of the USPs of this program. My whole experience during this program enabled me not only to secure a high-profile job with Cisco Systems India Pvt Ltd but also to excel in it. My current job with BMW India Pvt Ltd is directly linked to my real-time live MBA Master's Thesis, with BMW India, focusing on logistics and strategic management. Strong foundation in theories, drilling practical experience and fun filled cross-cultural exposure differentiate this program -given another chance, I shall make the same choice again! After all, it is within us to identify value and grasp it!"

Ms. Vinola Perumalsamy

Deputy Manager - Pipeline Management,
Logistics BMW India Pvt Ltd, Class of 2011-'13

GERMAN MBA PROGRAM AND ITS RELEVANCE

The Dual degree course is designed in a way that it focuses on live case studies and team work. The thinking process involved is comparatively high as compared to other MBA courses. Understanding and command of German language is acquired to enter European job market. The methodology involved in Master Thesis helps students to improve their knowledge and in turn enhance professional skills. Master Thesis also acts as a stimulant for those who are interested in research fields in the Europe. The faculty has enormous and rich experience in industry and they are experts in the field of management education.

Shivkrishna H.R.

Asst. Manager - B. D.

(A GMR Group Enterprise)
Class of 2009-'11

Today, business and trade are going beyond national boundaries and getting international. The most likely reasons for this would be to expand, grow and to survive the competition in International markets. The most crucial factors that support this internationalization would be liberalization of trade policies, technological advancements, and Internet and transportation systems. These new trends also emphasize the point of managers with international exposure and cultural openness for successfully managing International Businesses.

Dual degree programme offered by Christ University in partnership with FHWS, Germany offers this unique platform imparting international education with stay in Germany during their coursework. It helps in broadening horizons of budding managers and inculcates inter-cultural understanding in students.
