Indian Constitution and Dr. B.R. Ambedkar:

Making Indian constitution pre-supposed an expertise in various constitutions-prevailing in the contemporary world, deep knowledge on law and a thorough understanding of Indian history and ethos, without which a step ahead would have invited apprehensions of dangerous proportions. As the Indian constitution is the longest constitution in the world, so was the process of making it which was prolonged and highly debated. It took two years eleven months and eighteen days to make it. As per the Cabinet Mission Plan, the commitment of the State Legislative Councils was called for. There were 389 members in the Constituent Assembly in all. In the meanwhile, India was bifurcated and the number came down to 299. On November 26, 1949, the 248 members present in the Constituent Assembly put their assent on the draft constitution and got it passed. Before that, Dr. Rajendra Prasad was elected as the President of the Constituent Assembly on December 11, 1946. The Drafting Committee was formed under the chairmanship of Baba Saheb Dr. Bhim Rao Ambedkar taking as members in it, the heads of different Committees. The other members were N. Gopalaswami Ayyangar, Alladi Krishnaswami Ayyar, Sayed Mohammed Sa'adulla, K. M. Munshi, B.L. Mitter and D. P. Khaitan ( Later N. Madhav Rao was appointed in B.L. Mitter's place and T. T. Krishnamachary was appointed in the vacancy caused by the death of D.P.Khaitan ). They produced such a complete and commendable constitution which not only succeeded in giving a viable democracy to India but in upholding and maintaining unity in diversity of Indian society and culture. In this regard the comment of Baba Saheb Dr. Bhim Rao Ambedkar in the Assembly on 25th November, 1949 is remarkable; he said, "The constitution, I offered may be good or bad, it will depend on how the men in office use it". It means, "However good a Constitution may be, if the executors fail to deliver, it may prove to be a bad one, and if the executors are good enough, however bad the constitution may be, it will definitely prove to be good." On 26th November, 1949 Dr. Rajendra Prasad, in his inaugural speech announced in his memorable style that the Constituent Assembly in the whole has been successful in giving us a commendable constitution and expressed confidence that would be effective enough to fulfill the needs of India, but opined that the success of a constitution will depend much on the ability, integrity and character of the elected representatives. If they lack in the qualities, however ideal constitution may be, it will fail to deliver. On 29th August 1947, he was made the Chairman of the Drafting Committee; he was to give India the biggest and the most complex of a Constitution. He turned out to be fortune-maker of a great nation. He was equal to the monumental task he was entrusted with and proved himself to be the modern intellectual as the chief architect of the monument called the Indian constitution. Not only did he create but achieve for himself legendary dimensions. He gave a lot to the nation and the nation was waiting for more from him, when at a very critical juncture of the nation's new phase of history, his very health had started failing. The Constitution carved out by Baba Saheb Dr. Bhim Rao Ambedkar's acumen had incorporated the greatest schedules on the Dalits and down-trodden which brought eulogies from the world over. The schedule was accepted on November 29, 1948. He had warned against the nation-baiters and likened them to the traitors in history who had betrayed the rulers of Sindh, Dahir and the likes of Jayachandra who led to India's ultimate subjugation. He warned against such treachery in future. Therefore he had vowed to guard India's freedom till his last drop of blood. Dr. Bhim Rao Ambedkar was a great son of India, the architect of Indian Constitution and a global intellectual.
