11. Write a précis of the following passage and give a suitable title to it : 2+8=10

Machines were made to be man's servants; yet he has grown so dependent on them that they are in a fair way to become his masters. Already most men spend most of their lives looking after and waiting upon machines. And the machines are very stern masters. They must be fed with coal, and given petrol to drink, and oil to wash with and must be kept at the right temperature. And if they do not get their meals when they expect them, they grow sulky and refuse to work, or burst with rage, and blow up, and spread ruin and destruction all around them. So we have to wait upon them very attentively and do all that we can to keep them in a good temper.

Already we find it difficult either to work or play without the machines, and a time may come when they will rule us altogether, just as we rule the animals. (C. E. M. Joad)

12. Read the passage given below and answer the questions that follow :

The manager of a well-known firm was interviewing applicants for the post of a night watchman he had advertised. He was very hard to please and always found something wrong with each man—one had long hair, another small eyes, a third was too thin, a fourth very fat and another too tall.

Among the applicants interviewed by the manager for the post was one Mohan. He watched all this as he sat in the verandah patiently waiting for his turn to be interviewed. He resolved to be prepared for anything, when his turn came all went well. The manager found nothing wrong with his appearance, size or constitution. He was so handsome, tall and strong that the manager was really pleased to see such a well-built young man. "Is your health sound?" said the manager at last, "No Sir", replied Mohan, "not quite. I suffer from one serious complaint." "What's that?" asked the manager sharply. 'Sleeplessness', came the prompt reply.

The manager was so pleased with the answer of the young man that, without questioning him further, he appointed him.
