TEST II English Language

Directions for Q. Nos. 31 to 45: These questions are based on the contents of the passages and II given below. Read the passages carefully and answer the questions that follow them on the basis of the contents of the passage in each case.

Passage I

War has escaped the battlefield and now can, with modern guidance systems on missiles, touch virtually every square meter of the earth's surface. War has also lost most of its utility in achieving the traditional goals of conflict. Control of territory carries with it the obligation to provide subject peoples certain administrative, health, education, and other social services; such obligations far outweigh the benefits of control. If the ruled population is ethnically or racially different from the rulers, tensions and chronic unrest often exist which further reduce the benefits and increase the costs of domination.

Large populations no longer necessarily enhance state power and, in the absence of high levels of economic development, can impose severe burden on food supply, jobs, and broad range of services expected of modern governments. The non-economic security reasons for the control of territory have been progressively undermined by the advances of modern technology. The benefits of forcing another nation to surrender its wealth are vastly overweighed by the benefits of persuading the nation to produce and exchange goods and services. In brief, imperialism no longer pays.

Making war has been one of the most persistent of human activities in the 80 centuries since men and women settled and thereby became "civilized" but the modernisation of the past 80 years has fundamentally changed the role and function of war. In pre-modernized societies successful warfare brought significant material rewards, the most obvious of which were the stored wealth of the defeated. Equally important was human labour – control over people as slaves or levies for the victor's army, and there was the productive capacity – agricultural lands and mines. Successful warfare also produced psychic benefits. The removal or destruction of a threat brought a sense of security, and power gained over others created pride and national self-esteem.

War was accepted in the pre-modernised society as a part of the human condition, a mechanism of change and an unavoidable, even noble, aspect of life. The excitement and drama of war made it a vital part of literature and legends.

- 31. According to the passage, leaders of pre-modernised society considered war to be
 - (1) a valid tool of national policy
 - (2) an important act of aggression
 - (3) economically wasteful and socially unfeasible
 - (4) restricted in scope to military participants
- 32. Which of the following cannot be cited as a psychic advantage of war in the pre-modernized society, according to the author?
 - (1) The creation of a sense of security
 - (2) The perception of war as a noble aspect of life
 - (3) The enhancement of national self-esteem
 - (4) The pride that followed as a result of power over others
- 33. The author most likely places the word "civilized" in quotation marks in order to
 - (1) show dissatisfaction at not having found a better word
 - (2) acknowledge that the word was borrowed from another source
 - (3) express irony that war should be a part of civilisation
 - (4) impress upon the reader the tragedy of war
- 34. The author mentions all of the following as possible reasons for going to war in a pre-modernised society, except
 - (1) possibility of material gain
 - (2) total annihilation of the enemy and destruction of enemy territory
 - (3) potential for increasing the security of the nation
 - (4) desire to capture productive farming lands
- 35. Which of the following best describes the tone of the passage?
 - (1) Outraged and indignant
 - (2) Humorous and wry
 - (3) Concerned and optimistic
 - (4) Scientific and detached

- 36. War in the pre-modern society was often the subject of legend because
 - (1) it was a noble aspect of life
 - (2) it was required to be recorded for history
 - (3) it was an unavoidable part of existence
 - (4) it was considered an exciting and dramatic phenomenon
- 37. According to the passage, war in the modern time is no longer desirable because
 - people have realised the costs of going to war are enormous
 - (2) there is far greater desire for peace and coexistence than for power
 - (3) of the realisation that ruling over other countries is no longer economically advantageous
 - (4) technological advances have obviated the need for war
- 38. The words 'war has escaped the battlefield' have been used in the passage to indicate that
 - (1) technological advances have made the field of war all pervasive
 - (2) the area of war is now not definable
 - (3) war has become uncontrollable
 - (4) battlefields are now extinct
- 39. The contents of the passage show that it has been written
 - (1) very recently
 - (2) about 5 years back
 - (3) sometime in the 1980s
 - (4) cannot be determined from the passage

Passage II

Putting "people first" is easy to say. And its currently politically correct. What Manager, in his or her mind, is going to admit publicly that employees take a back seat to cost cutting or profitability? It is important, however, not to confuse talk with action.

Putting people first is not necessarily consistent with long-term competitiveness. Managers must recognise this fact and are increasingly acting on it. Today's organisations are more typically pursuing a "labour-cost minimization" strategy rather than a people-first strategy. When you look beyond what managers say, you find most business firms place profits over people. They re-engineer processes and cut the size of their permanent workforce. And they substitute temporary workers for full-time permanent staff. Organisations with problems typically look to staffing cuts as a first response. And organisations without problems are regularly reviewing their staffing needs to identify redundancies and overstaffing. Their goal is to keep themselves "lean and mean". In today's competitive environment, few organisations have the luxury to be able to provide workers with implied "permanent employment" or to offer anything more than minimal job security. For almost all organisations today, employees are a variable cost. Staffing levels are kept to a minimum and employees are continually added or deleted as needed. Interestingly, the labour-cost-minimisation strategy appears to be spreading worldwide. It began in Canada and the United States in the early 1990s. Now it has become the model for companies in countries such as Japan, South Korea and Thailand - places that historically protected their employees in good times and bad. Many firms in these countries have abandoned their permanent employment, people-first policies. Why? Because such policies are inconsistent with aggressive, low-cost global competition.

The above debate is ongoing in most organisations where management must make decisions regarding efficiencies and effectiveness. Indeed, a bottomline focus must be balanced with the need to create an environment for employees that facilitates an acceptable bottomline!

- 40. Putting people first, according to the passage is
 - (1) easier said than done
 - (2) profitable
 - (3) politically though not economically defensible
 - (4) good for the company's public image
- 41. The term 'lean and mean organisation', as used in the passage, means
 - (1) a meaningful organisation
 - (2) an organisation staffed with slim and well meaning people
 - (3) a competitive organisation with no overstaffing
 - (4) an organisation which means business
- 42. Some countries have abandoned their traditional policy of permanent employment because
 - (1) employees have become a variable cost
 - (2) it is no longer viable in a globally competitive environment
 - (3) employees are no longer keen on life-long employment in the same organisation
 - (4) they would like to take the benefit of outsourcing

- 43. The term 'a bottomline focus' is used in the passage to indicate
 - (1) the organisational focus on profitability
 - (2) a concern for the lowest possible costs
 - (3) the ground reality
 - (4) the attention to breakeven point
- 44. As per the passage, staff reduction is the first response of
 - (1) organisations getting into the competitive mode
 - (2) organisations with problems
 - (3) organisations seeking to reengineer
 - (4) organisations without problems
- 45. The author's tone in the passage is
 - (1) ironical and critical
 - (2) scientific and incisive
 - (3) pragmatic and informed
 - (4) humorous and entertaining

Directions for Q. Nos. 198 to 200.

A person who is drawing up a will has exactly five potential heirs - S, T, U, V and W. The estate will distribute exactly seven lots of land, which are numbered 1 through 7. All seven lots will be distributed, subject to the following restrictions:

- (i) No lot is to be shared, and no heir can inherit more than three lots.
- (ii) Whoever inherits lot 2 cannot inherit any other lot. (iii) No heir can inherit both lot 3 and lot 4.
- (iv) If S inherits one or more lots, then U cannot inherit any. (v) If S inherits lot 2, then T must inherit lot 4.
- (vi) W must .inherit lot 6 but cannot inherit lot 3.
- 198. If S inherits lot 2, who must inherit lot 3?
 - (1) $\mathbf{1}$
- (2) U
- (3) V
- (4) W
- 199. If S inherits lot 2 and three heirs inherit two lots each, no one can inherit both lots
